About Access Riders

access

- An Access Rider is a document for disabled people to talk about accessibility.
- You use an Access Rider to tell people you work with what you need to do your job.
- Anyone can use an Access Rider to ask for fair changes that help them work better.

Human Rights

- Access Riders help disabled people get their rights.

share information

- You can share your Access Rider with all the places or people you work with.

private information

- Organisations should only share your Access Rider with people who support you.
- Organisations should only share your Access Rider if you agree.

The Access Rider has 4 parts:

1. Your details

about you

- You tell us your name.
- You tell us your job or role.
- You tell us how to contact you.

2. Your access information

my support

- Tell us what we can do to support you.
- We have given you some examples.
- You can tell us about different things.

3. Your emergency information

emergency contact

- You tell us what we should know if there is an emergency.
- You can tell us about any medication we need to know about.
- You tell us who to call in an emergency. This could be a friend or a family member.

4. Any other information

- Tell us anything else you want us to know about.
- Tell us things that help us to support you and your work.
